

- Writers who create the headlines and opening sentences
- Presenters who deliver the opening sentences
- Researchers who explore the meaning of the saying
- Video team who record the news

Each headline and opening sentence should include a biblical saying and the opening lines should reflect its meaning. Video the finished programme.

3. Headline swap

Pupils create a headline for a newspaper that includes a biblical saying. They then swap headlines with another pupil and create the story behind the headline they now have.

Reflection

The sayings from the Bible came into English because, in many cases, they reflected people's experiences. Think about these sayings and find one that chimes with your experience.
